

The California Post

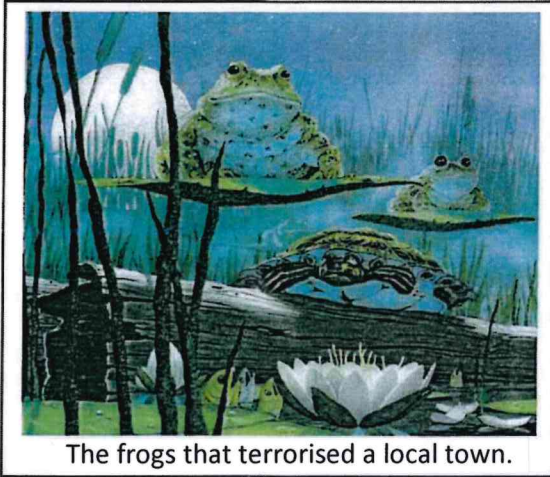

Date: Monday 27th January

YOUR FAVOURITE DAILY NEWSPAPER

Price: £1.00

LOADS OF TOADS FOUND ON ROADS

Why aren't frogs on their logs?

The frogs that terrorised a local town.

by [REDACTED]

On the outskirts of California, residents claim that a platoon of flying frogs invaded at 7:30 last night.

The first reported sighting was at 7:48pm. Locals claim that over 75 toads on lily pads flew over a small town in California.

Mattaus Smellieus, 98, said, "I just having me supper when I saw loads of frogs on green flying saucers in the corner of my eye."

He added, "So I went outside and got me baseball bat and shooed them away. They had covered all me sheets in gunk and scattered them all over the town."

Over 300 lily pads have been recovered and 23 frogs have been found trapped in people's homes. Police are reveiwing the CCTV and trying to find a resonable explanation why these flying frieks have invaded.

Officer Jonny.J Isarobber -who is head of the California Police Department (C.P.D)-said, "We are trying to find the explanation behind this and act responsibly."

He added everyone should stay calm and try to get back to normal whisl't trying to spot any strange

Activity.

The community are trying to clear up the mess left behind by the frogs and the police are investigating to try to prevent events in the future.

It's finger lickin'
good